TICKET TO RIDE

New York

Spiderman unofficial Mini-expansion

by Stefano Negro

Disclaimer

This is an unofficial fan-made expansion to the board game Ticket to Ride: New York. All rights belong to the publisher Days of Wonder and the designer Alan R. Moon. I also don't claim in any way, shape or form any ownership to the Spiderman comic characters which belong to Marvel Comics.

In order to play this little expansion for Ticket to Ride: New York you will need one Spiderman pawn (the Lego Spiderman minifig is perfect for this) and 6 Picture Tokens not included in the game.

Additional Setup

As part of the standard setup put the Spiderman Pawn on the Empire State Building Location on the Gameboard and the 6 Picture Tokens aside in a common supply at reach of all players.

The Game

The game is played according to the standard rules with the following changes:

- At the beginning of a player's turn, if on the Transportation card display row there are at least one red and one blue card, that player can move Spiderman up to three spaces to a different Location following any adjacent completed or uncompleted route. This special action does not count as a player's action
- When claiming a route if one of the two locations included in the route is occupied by Spiderman you immediately take a picture you can sell to the Daily Bugle. Collect one Picture Token from the common supply (if available) or steal it from any other player if the common supply is empty (that player picture was rejected by Jonah Jameson and maybe you took a better one!)

End Game Scoring

As part of the end game scoring each player gets one point for each Picture Token they collected and still have in front of themselves by the end of the game.
